WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER BY FRANK A. TANNEHILL JR.

Under a spreading chestnut tree The village comedian stands: A favorite in the town is he And his company never strands The chestnut tree has a crop you see. Of plays from many lands.

His eyes are sharp, his fingers long-He doesn't care a-clam! Old Uncle Tom has run too long: He'll grab just what he can And look the audience in the face-This audience is in Penn Van Week in, week out, at eight o'clock You can see his "rocky" show: No town too small, he plays them all-

His Chost is rather slow He pleases well, but, sad to tell His treasury is low. And people walking in the street Look in at the open door;

Though the highest price is "thirty,"
There's room for many more. They can see him standing on his neck They can hear the people roar. The house would have been much larger

But there's a christening just next door. He goes on Tuesday to the theatre. And sits among his "troupe;" He rehearses them in "Hazel Kirke" To save them from the soun

Aunt Ophelia then approaches. What? Little Eva has the crour He had cast little Eva for Hazel Kirke. He looks up to the flies: He needs must think of some other play

To save him from railroad ties. Put on 'Cap. Swift." That'll give us a lift.

Alas! how hard the pirate dies! Topeka, Kokomo, Waukesha That is the route he goes. Each night sees some play pirated

He'd even put on the Passion Play If he could get the props, and clothes All hall to thee, thou pirate flend! "The lesson's still untaught:" Why don't managers who own the plays, From which your wealth is wrought

Pay royalty? Not if he knows

Close up the pirate "number one." Who sold the plays you bought?

CATHERINE LINYARD.

The actress whose portrait we give this week is the daughter of W. K. Linyard and Emma Reignolds, players who were marked favorites at the Bowery Theatre several decades ago. Catherine Linyard was born Nov. 28, 1868. On her mother's side she is the neice of Kate Reignolds (Mrs. Erving Winslow), who is yet remembered and admired by many playgoers. Miss Linyard commenced her stage career by assuming childs' parts with her Aunt Kale, and when not quite three years' old. During a performance of "Dora," after the first act the house applauded loudly. The stage manager tried to ascertain the cause, and, looking out of the curtain found tiny Miss L. outside dancing to the time of the orchesira. Then again at Montreal. Can., she went to the theatre with Mrs. John Buckland. The piece was "The Serpent on the Hearth." In the third act, where the mother goes mad and calls for her child, Miss L. started to climb on the stage, saying: "I toming, Aunt Tate, I toming " At the age of ten years she made a balloon ascension from the Highland House in Cincinnati, O., and has the satisfaction of knowing she is the youngest girl who ever attempted such a trip. At twelve she became the prima donna of R. E. J. Miles' Juvenile Opera Co., and in 1884 joined Mrs. D. P. Bow ers, in "La Charbonniere," making a hit in a small part. Brooks & Dickson transferred her to the Mme. Ristori Co., and engaged her to support Salvini the following year. In 1886 she Janauschek, with whom she remained until the close of that season, when Willard Spencer engaged her on Saturday to open on Monday, as prima donna in "The Little Tycoon," She accepted and studied the part on Sunday, opening Monday night. and making a hit. Mr. Spencer immediately en gaged her for the following season. Next season she goes with Monroe & Rice's Co., opening Sept. 9, at Newark N. J.

WHAT A BULL FIGHT COSTS.

The cost of one of these corridas may be reckoned at not less than £1.500. There are generally six bulls killed, and these average from £70 to £100 Horses are bought at simply prices; sometimes as many as twenty-five are done to death. There are generally three espadas, and these, with their cuadrillas, may be taken, one with another at about £250 each. Then there is a very large number of assistants and attendants; a very heavy rent is paid for the plaza, and the Govern-ment tax, or "contribucion," is also a considerable item. The "gate" may be estimated, given a "full house"-and it is almost always fairly filled-at WHAT's this I hear about Pickings? They say he is a sufferer from kleptomania. Did you hear anything of that kind?" "Not exactly; I have been given to understand that the shopkeepers are the sufferers."

HAUNTED.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY WILL H. SHADE. You hear me laugh, you see me smile And think you that never a care I know. Yet my heart is as cold and dull the while As the Winter's dress of ice and snow. My mind is not with the laughing throng And my thoughts are league on league away On life's dull tide I float along Through sleepless night and dreary day, For I am haunted !

A ghost? Not any; and goblins none Why, they would be relief, indeed! And never a spook was under the sur To which I would pay the slightest heed. Spirits I scorn—they're naught to me Yet I'd never envy the gayest rich Could I, alas! forget that she Is such a charming little witch By whom I'm haunted!

THE PAUPER AT THE PIANO

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY CHARLES M. SKINNER

Lights were up in the theatre, lamps glimmered like firefles at the musicians' desks, bright faced well fed people were hurrying down the aisles under guide of ushers, and the play was about to be-gin. As the orchestra was concluding the overture. the leader detected a discord, and, turning quickly, he frowned at the double bass player. A few of the auditors noticed it also, and one or two of them drew their breath sharply through their teeth, as an expression of pain. Perhaps the musician heard them. At all events he colored just a shade and bent toward his score with apologetic earnestness. He was an old man, with a gentle face, white hair and a peculiar look in his eyes that gave them the virtue of a mute appeal, though the spectacles that covered them were large and high magniflers. The curtain went up, and, placing his bow on his rack. he descended into the depths beneath the stagethat shabby, confined, half lighted region of brick walls, beams, traps, properties and slab partitioned dressing rooms, where the theatre confesses itself a shop and a sham. Overhead the boards were creaking to the measured tread of a great tragedian, who had now been performing the same part for three weeks, so the musicians, whose interest in him had been sated, dived out of sight and began playing pinnocle before he made his entrance. There was a long, muffled roar outside-his welcome from the audience—and, although choruses of applause and laughter had ceased years ago to excite the attention of the double bass player, he paused to listen to the sound tonight. The shadow of a smile flitted across his face. Then he nodded thoughtfully and went on with hesitating steps to the barrack called a music room, where his companions were dealing cards.

What was the matter with you?" asked the leader, in an irritated tone.

The old man tried to look pleasant.
"I don't know," said he; "the light nowadays so poor that one can hardly see it without a candle.' "Chestnut!" interposed the clarionet player, the youngest member of the band.

"Hoffman has played the 'Semiramide' overture for so many years he thought he could do it with his eyes shut," added the flutist, in a strain of genial

The eves were quite weak and soft as they turned on the group, and none of the musicians spoke again for a minute or two. In the entr'acte number, a potpourri that had been hastily rehearsed there was another false note from the "bull fiddle," more rasping than before, and a passage marked piano was begun on that instrument mezzo forte.

The old man flushed again and studied his score minutely, but this time the leader did not turn. When the play was over, the lights were down, the actors were hurrrying into street dress, and the stage hands were setting the scene for the mor-row's matinee, Hoffman touched the leader's arm at the stage door and said, in a low tone:

'I think I will not come tomorrow

"I'm sorry I spoke of it," answered the leader. "Of course, it was accident. You are not a careless

This speech was mollifying, but non-committal, and the old man repeated: "I think I will not come." Then he added: "Have you time to go two streets out of your way?"

"If you wish it."

As their custom was, the musicians had as semble at a hostlery near the theatre, for sand-wiches and beer, and on this occasion Rhine wine was opened, cigars were passed and the double player footed the bill, giving them all a hearty good night. As he reached his door he said to th leader, who had accompanied him: "I shall never be with them again. Thank you for coming with I was not sure that I could find the house, for I am growing blind."

Readers of city newspapers may surmise by what process it was that the little walletful of securities held by Jacob Hoffman, the blind musician, depre ciated until they represented nothing-but placed confidence. The benefit arranged for him did not yield much, for whoever knew a double bass player by name? The Mutual Reliance Association that had faithfully acknowledged his two dollars a month returned but a fitful and sparing comfort, and, at length, forgot him. Little by little his goods disappeared, his double bass going last of all: and when, at length, his landlady told him. for a new boarder who was well-to-do, and whose rental would suffice to relieve her from a financial embarrasment, he turned pale, but answered quite steadily that she was right. Then he dictated s couple of letters, and asked to be allowed to speak to a policeman. That functionary was discovered in good season, and the result of a short conversation with him was that the old musician was led. in a considerate manner to an office, somewhere, and after sitting for three hours on a hard bench, breathing unpleasant air, was told that the almshouse wagon had come.

The worst infirmity and distress is often tempered with unsuspected mercies. Since Hoffman was to go to the almshouse it was better that he should never see its bare walls, cracked windows and sag-lor" and slam the door beind him, but as all the people in that place were heavy footed, loud voiced and canged the doors, he gave no thought to that. It had not occurred to him to play for the superintendent's pleasure, and he ought to have known that a ward politician, like the ruler of the almhouse, would not be entertained by Chopin. Unfortunately, the superintendent's sitting room ad-joined the "parlor," the dignity of which apartment was indicated not alone by the piano, but by our haircloth chairs, a table with wax flowers, Nottingham lace at the windows and three chromos of religious subjects on the walls.

Before a week of such practice was ended, Hoffman had played himself quite out of the graces of lor, and gave unwitting notice of the fact in a few blithely struck though softened chords of music that changed by harmonic gradations to a succession of minors, whence emerged the somber phrase that begins the "Moonlight Sonata." The rusty piano was new again, the jingling wires were in tune, and the sustained octaves of the bass rolled like organ notes. The adazio was played through.

"Ach! Dot C sharp minor movement was like a funeral," muttered a German on the second floor who, after a triple fall of the closing chord, stood listening at the stairs for the second movement to begin—the light and joyous phrase that comes so happily after those measures that tell of Beethoven's despair and gloom. That gladsome measure did

They had heard the music in the office outlook on dusty levels, with Potter's Field in their about it to his assistants and friends, and at last in midst, where one or two graves were always open awaiting occupants. Better, too, that he should not see the coarse, imbruted faces that looked at his as he was led into the ward where a bed had been as signed to him, and the misshapen forms in mis shapen garb that slouched and lounged and tottered through the corridors. Just as well, too, that the aspect of the surly, ignorant employes could only be guessed through their grumbling speech. that they often grumbled at him. He noticed, after a little, that even when a fellow pauper had re ceived a rating for some negligence or infraction of discipline that the same voice would address him in lower tones, and would omit its accustomed pro

One day the old man's face brightened, for h heard some one playing on a piano in the building, though it was some one with a clumsy touch. an untrained ear and a deprayed taste in music, and the piano was one of those archaic instruments that can be found only in Summer hotels and public in stitutions. He had played on good pianos himself and he could partly forgive the faults of this one it he might use it to ease the tedium of life in this family of the slothful and unfortunate. He was told that the superintendent had given him leave to play, but again it was as well that the old man was essay at the keyboard, for it would have pained him could he have seen the puzzled look of the face of that officer, and watched it deepen into weariness and disgust. He heard him stamp out of the "par-utter loss of patience, went to the offender and thus expressed himself:

"Dis ain't no morgue. If yous can't give us real music, 'stead o' dat stuff, just drop it. See? I've asked a dozen times for 'Johnny, Get yer Gun,' an' 'Goodby, 'Liza Jane,' an' some o' dem pieces what's got chunes into 'em, an' all we get is a lot o' church

"A-a-ah, what's yous given us? I know music when I hear it, don't I? Dat stuff's no good. We're all sick of it."

"I'm sorry that I don't know any other."

"Den you'll have to mosey. We can't stan' it no longer. Dere's jobs what you can do in de kitchen." The old man arose slowly, a little red spot shin-ing on each cheek, and felt his way out of the room, while the superintendent drank a glass of whiskey dropped into an easy chair, took up a newspaper and began a needfully slow but somewhat anxious perusal of the column devoted to the aldermanic the Sixth Ward. Nor was the plane vexed again for many a month, save by "chunes" from an in-frequent visitor who was employed in one of the city saloons, and whose heavy handed performance 'The Daisy Polka' had been the first apprisal to Hoffman that there was a source of music in that dreary building. Yet, on one bright Winter morn-ing the old man felt his way down stairs to the par-and the housekeeper had been dispatched to stop it. When she entered the room, after waiting with her hand on the knob until a pause should come the old musician was seated dreamily at the keyboard. leaning back in the shabby hair cloth chair, his fingers resting on the keys. A smile touched the corners of his mouth, his brow was white in a ray of sunlight, and the faded eyes were lifted as if they looked beyond the ken of seeing men. The soft ra dience on his face showed that he had forgotten the little tyrany and little rudeness of little men and he seemed to imagine himself in a place where all was love and peace and music. He was so rap that the housekeeper forbore to speak in her usual peremptory manner, for she asked, rather than ordered him to leave, and the dirge like motive had so affected her that there was a tremor in her voic when she repeated her request. But Hoffman gave no answer, and did not rise. The majestic harmo-nies to which his later years had been a mournful prelude had sounded into his ears at last-a psean of succoring angels. The old musician was dead.

"HERE's a box addressed to you," said the wife of a prominent man. "I don't think you'd better open it, though." "What shall we do with it?" "I'll tell you; we'll take it out and get the hired girl to open it. She has lit the fire with kerosene three times this week, and I don't think that dynamite will hurt her."

John Fay Palmer's Dramatization Pro duced at Cleveland, O.

(Special Dispatch to The New York Clipper.)
CLAYKLAND, O., July 23—An important first production was that of John Fay Palmer's dramatization of Bulwer's
"Last Days of Ponpeil" last night. A large audience witnessed the piece, and the young author, who also played the part of Arbaces, the Egyptian priest, received an ovation. There were, of course, the usual first night mishaps, but the play, put on spectacularly and deprived of finuch of its unnecessary verbiage, cannot help but be one of the successes of next season. The dramatization is well done. The few faults can easily be eliminated.
The parts were well played. John Sturgeon did very well as Glaucus. Chas. W. King, a Cleveland actor, made one of the hits of the evening as Calenus. Thos. E. Garrick, Wm. Stuart and Asa Stevensall did well. The ladies, Eleanor Collier, Jeanette Ferrell, Daisy Beverly and Sara Alexander, must be commended for good work. The aconic effects were good.

NEW JERSEY.

Atlantic City .- Our city was never better nor more thoroughly supplied with amusement than at present, and yet business generally has been only moderate. Better houses are looked for when the August guests shall have arrived.

August guests shall have arrived.

PAINS' AMPHITHEATRE.—The opening night of 'The Last Days of Pompeli,' July 18, drew a large and enthusiastic audience, which was increased in size at the second presentation 20. Pain & Sons' spectacles have become to be looked upon here as the leading events of the amusement world, and in the hands of such able managers as Thearle & Cooper, assisted by McLellan and Wilson, are very successful. The production will be given every Tuesday. Thursday and Saturday throughout the season and on special occasions.

Sacred concerts are given every Sunday evening.

On July 27, Havlin's Theatre—late Baker's—is to inaugurate the season and tempt fate with a new light opera, "The Pretty Persian." by Lecocq, the source from which also came "The Oolah." In the Norcross Opera Co, are Laura Beilini, Lila Blow, Stuart Harold, Hattle Harvey, Burt Haverly, E. H. Van Veghten, J. C. Abdill and J. W. He is also credited with licking "The Pretty Persian" into shape. Mr. Havlin has hung his banner on the outer wall to an extent that leaves nothing to the imagination. Hooley's.—"Enoch Arden" was originally booked for four weeks, but begins its third and last week 22. Though of no great dramatic interest, it has elicited praise as a series of stage pictures. The scenic effects are all fine. Mr. Beers has fully recovered his voice, and Marion Abbott is nightly encored at the end of the fifth act.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—Manager Henderson is so well pleased with the second edition of 'Bluebeard Jr." that he is going to try still another edition. July 18, its fiftieth performance, a pretty souvenir was given to the patrons of the house. Several changes have taken place in the performance during the week, the most notable being the transformation of the Hebrew twins into colored policemen. Tuesday evening Benj. R. Graham assumed the part of Bluebeard in the place of Mr. Peakes, and it is likely that he will continue to play the part through the remainder of the run. Some thirty or torty children have been engaged for a ballet and nursery procession on 28. New costumes are in preparation, and the properties to be used are being manufactured. "The Dude Brigade," "The Oriental Swell." "June Skies" and "The Army So Grand." by David Braham, have caught on well, and the two latter, sung by Lilly Post, have already become popular.

Emily Lytton, who succeeded Isabelle Evesson as Dearest, has made quite a hit. "King Cole II" comes 28.

JACOBS' ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—'The Diamond Mystery' will receive its first production at Jacobs' Academy 22, and continue during the week. It is a new drama by Elliot Barnes, and is in the hands of Harry Richards, an old Chicago favorite and a clever actor, who will be ably assisted by a competent company, including Lida Richards. [Elliott Barnes died several years ago. The drama above referred to cannot, therefore, be very new. Probably it is one of Mr. Barnes' old plays rechristened.—ED. CLIPPER.]

It was the opening of her tour, and his first appearance in Roland Reed's former success.

UNDER THE WHITE TENTS.

FROM THE BARNUM-BAILEY CANVAS CITY.—Ho, for Europe! "Who's going?" This is the question of the hour. The announcement came like a thunderbolt, and placed nearly all the performers on the anxious seat. Some engagements have been made, but the lucky ones keep the secret locked up in their bosoms. Suspicton, however, has spotted a few, for they have been detected polishing up their cockney dialect, and the artist who has already acquired the art of artistically dropping his h's is envied. The mails, too, are heavy and many, and our indefatigable postmaster, Mr. Fritz, is sore of muscle and tired at heart after lugging the daily invoice of photographs and letters to Mr. Bailey. The picture of a fat woman should not weigh more than that of a sketcon, but Friz says it seems to, and, from the weight of the mails, at least a thousand fat people have made application. At Concord, N. H., Mr. Bailey ordered three thousand dollars worth of hippodrome harness for the London engagement. Geo. O. Starr, whose clever work resulted in the leasing of the Great Omypia Ruiding, has left the show en route for England to further arrange for the coming of the great show. His popular wife (Zace) accompanned him, much to his delight and the regret of the members of the company, who esteemed her highly. The same terrific businessas of old continues, though the shower baths from Heaven have been in order lately, and robbed life "on the lot" of many of its usual comforts. The performance has added charms in the recent addition of Annie Carroll and Willie O'Dale, both riding better than ever. Mr. Barnum writes that he never fell better in his life, and is looking forward to his London trip with feelings of extraordinary pleasure. The season in London will be a grand opportunity for American talent to display itself, and, from present indications, it will be well improved. Notes from the John Robinson Shows.—John F. Robinson was with us for two days last week, and then left for home, to make preparations to take his family to the sea shore. John Robinson Jr. accompanied him. The girls all hated to see Johnny leave, for he was quite a favorite. Gil Robinson has become quite an anateur photographer. He is out every afternoon with his camera, taking views of the mountain scenery of Virginia. He obtained some excellent views of the house he was born in at Buchanan. Va. He is anxiously waiting for the closing of the season to take his trip around the world. He was presented with a great many handsome presents—July 15—his birthday. Dan W. Henry Scharf, the comedian of this theatre for one season, left the stage in 1852 and became a professeason, left the stage in 1852 and became a professor of elocution and anatomical drawing at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va., and remained there employed for Iwenty-five years, after which he returned to the stage and acted at the National Theatre, Cinclinnati, Ohio, for awhile, About 1832-3 he became a member of a traveling dramatic company, acting the old men (with Lizzle Evans' Co.) for four or five seasons. He came to this city early in June, 1887, and, after indulging in liquor rather freely, was taken to his home, 65 Irving Place. The next morning he was missing, having suddenly disappeared. He died in this city June 19, 1887. He was 65 years of age, was born in England, and was 5ft. 7in. high and stout built.

Sarah Anderton's debut at this house was on the opening night of the season of 1850-1. "The Lady of Lyons" was acted Aug. 20. "Money" was done 24. The cast:

She came to this theatre and made her bow Nov. 16, atonce secured as the leading lady. This actress has played several male characters with success, but never Hamlet, as has been stated. She played Sir Edward Ardent in "The Morning Call." and Faustus to Lizzle Weston's Arline, as well as Romeo and King Charming. Her Mrs. Malaprop is a joy forever. In all that goes to produce a picture of stately dignity, womanly feeling, statuesque bearing, and the inner spirit of high comedy. Mine. Ponisi is unrivaled.

F. Bartiett Conway was what is called a good "all 'round' actor. He was considered the best John Mildmay in "Still Waters Run Deep" ever seen on the American stage. It was equally removed from extravagance and apathy, preserving complete composure without becoming indifferent, and displaying passion without violating the character of the man. His Evelyn in "Money" was one of his best impersonations. It was not an assumption: it was natural, easy, thoughtful and scholarly. He was also very good as Armand in "Camille." He made his American debut Aug. 19, 1850, as Charles Surface in "The School for Scandal." He died

Mass. Mrs. F. B. Conway was one of the best actresses of her time. She was gifted with an intellect of strong analytic power, sufficient to fit out half a dozen leading laddies. She had a fine, expressive face, a voice full and melodious, a carriage graceful and womanly. All her acting bore the stamp of a thorough understanding of the meaning of every line she spoke. Her maiden name was Surah Crocker, and she was a sister to Mrs. D. P. Bowers. Her first appearance in New York was at the National Theatre. She was leading lady at the Grand Opera House, this city, in 1859. Also her husband, who refused to support James E. Murdoch when he commenced a star engagement there, but Mrs. Conway continued. Her performance of Miranda in "The Tempest," at that house, was highly spoken of. She died in Brooklyn April 25, 1875.

The following story of F. R. Conway is told:
On one occasion, as the story goes, Conway was to receive a benefit at one of the Broadway houses, and was looking about for volunteer attractions. One day he happened in at the "House of Lords," Houston Street, and while there was attracted by the conversation of a "man monkey" actor, who declared his ability, through the sid-of-new-and-unique, mechanical appliances, to perform the "ring tailed monkey feat," and suspend him self in mid air by this newly invented caudal appendage. The idea struck Conway as being a good one, and talling into conversation with the acrobat, who was looking for an engagement, he soon arranged with him to perform this feat at the benefit. The man monkey was delighted with the courteous though dignified condescension of the tragedian. They drank together at Conway's expense, and the tragedian, who had selected "Cato" for his benefit, prepared to start for rehearsal.

larly in the South and West, where many private fetes were given in her honor during her visits to the various cities. I mention this because at that time it was a comparatively rare thing for professional persons to be invited within the home circle. On the occasion of her benefits she was almost always the recipient of many rare and valuable presents—a custom then prevalent in the Southern cities—composed chiefly of diamond ornaments, which were then considered the only fashionable jewelry. On one of these occasions a wealthy planter, residing in the interior of Georgia, who had heard of the fame of Miss Logan, resolved to see her act, and started upon a journey of some hundreds of miles, upon horseback, accompanied only by a faithful negro boy servant, for Augusta, where she was then performing. He arrived on a Friday morning, and that evening, according to theatrical custom, had been set apart for Miss Logan's benefit. The planter, accompanied by his friend, attended the performance, and was more than pleased, as his subsequent conduct explains. At the end of the third act, Miss Logan, having been summoned before the curtain, returned her thanks briefly, when presents from all parts of the auditorium were handed to her upon the stage. The enthusiastic planter was for a moment nonplussed, for he had neglected to provide any gift, and was most anxious to convey to the lady some expression of the satisfaction which, as an artist, she had afforded him. Suddenly, taking from his card case a visiting card, he wrote above the address the words "To Miss Eliza Logan, with the compliments of" and pinning it upon the coat sleeve of his faithful negro valet (worth at the then market rates some $2,000), bade him present himself to his future mistress. The negro boy did as he was bade, and gained access to Miss Logan's presence behind the scenes. This drama was written for Celeste, and she introduced it in this country, and performed it in all our chief cities with success. She created great excitement among theatre goers in this role. The powe of Celeste, in that beauliful picturesque scene, where, at the rising of the curtain, she is seen in almost a state of charming nudity, standing upon the turreted wall, with bow and arrow, was most exquisite. She was, indeed, a model for any painter or sculptor. Her attitudes were graceful, and her movements and dancing seemed to have been born of the Three Graces. She also introduced in this country the pretty Indian play. "Wept-of-Wish-ton-Wish." In this piece she performed the character of an Indian mother, and had a few words to speak. She also acted the romantic play. "The Wizard Skiff." Her speaking was very interesting and attractive, as she spoke with a great deal of naivete in English, broken by her French pronunciation. Secent and intonation. She was an excellent dancer. She combined power with grace, and dignity with ease, to which was added the effect of a right royal queenly bearing. She understood and appreciated that important auxiliary to good acting, the dramatic pose, the expression by the means of the posture of the body.

She understood and appreciated that important auxiliary to good acting, the dramatic pose, the expression by the means of the posture of the body, the disposition of the limbs, the inclination of the head, the play of the features, the reigning passion of the hour, be it love, grief, scorn or terror.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL NOTES

brooke, the comedian. The following is the story of his life, as told by himself: "I was born at Moun Vernon, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1860. I attended the publi school until I reached the age of eleven and was then placed in the East Chester National Bank, by J. then piaced in the Fast Opester National Bank, by J.

H. Price, His intention was to have me remain in the bank for three years, and then go to his law office and study law. Mr. Price was fost in a maritime disaster in 1872, and that changed the course of my Hig. I remained in the bank and, after the charter of that institution was sold. I was made teller in the private banking house of J. M. Masterson A Co. During my nine years' banking. I didn't average two days, a year away from my deak, and he close confinement told on me. I made up my mind that the make a change, and is a few weeks I dealer that the make a change, and is a few weeks I dealer. The weather was hot, and, of course, I old my read that the weather was hot, and, of course, I old my cash. While at Newark, I was the law of the course of the most of the course, the course, the course of the course, the course of the course of the course of the course, the course of the course o gagement was in farce, and I created Oleo Mashering in George Hoey's 'Keep It Dark,' playing the big cities and ending with a two weeks' engagement at the Eighth Street Theatre, New York. I appeared at the Standard later in Gunter's play,' A Wall Street Bandit,' playing Gentlemanly Jimmy, While in that company I made a deal with Chas. W. Bowser for a share of the profits, in his production of 'Poblars and Dimes,' and we opened at Bridgeport, Dec. 20, 1886, for one week. Our season was not profitable, and we closed at the Windsor Theatre, New York. Then came my first engagement with Chas. Hoyt, at Sunn's Park Theatre, Brooklyn, taking the part of the Italian and the Soldier in 'A Tin Soldier' at two hours' notice. I remained till the end of the season, i was then offered the Plumber for 1886-7. I accepted, and played the season out, Sept. 24, 1888, I opened with Kate Castileton, in 'A Paper Doll.' I remained with the 'till Nov. 4. Having a great desire to appear in comic opera, I accepted an orfer from Wellar & Spenser to play Gen. Knickerbocker in 'Little Tycoon.' I found I was successful in comic opera, and had fully determined to follow that line. While playing in New York I received overtures from C. H. Hoyt, and this brought me back to his employ, and I opened as Deacon Tidd, in 'A Midnight Bell,' Feb. 18, 1889, and appeared at the Bijou Theatre, New York, March 4, My last performance of the Deacon was July 8, at the benefit of J. T. Maguire, at the Bijou, appearing specially for that occasion."

VARIETY AND MINSTREL GOSSIP.

DAVID S. WAMBOLD, the veteran minstrel of yore DAVID S. WAMBOLD, the veteran minstrel of yore, and his wife have decided to live apart hereafter, each to go his and her own way at will. There is a sadder side to this separation even than is usual in such cases. They were married eighteen years ago. Since then until six weeks ago they lived together. A few years ago Mr. Wambold was stricken with a trouble which took on the form of locomotive ataxia and left him an invalid for life. Incapacitated for further work as he was, it was especially fortunate that he had saved money enough, made out of his rare talent in minstrelay, to support himself and his wife in comfort for the rest of their lives. They have lived at the Continental Hotel, this city, for some years. Mr. Wambold said last night that the first he knew of the present trouble was six weeks ago, when he received notice from his wife's law-yer that she desired a separation. They had had a discussion about that time about money matters, and she had taken another room in the same hotel. Mr. Wambold intimated that his wife was too extravagant, and that he had to check this because he wanted to take care of his resources, so that he wouldn't be left penniless in his declining years. Then, too, Mrs. Wambold was very anxious to go on the stage, and this idea was opposed strongly by Mr. Wambold. It was these two things that led to her demand for a separation. Mr. Wambold did not oppose it. The papers were drawn up, and the couple parted. Mr. wambold made a liberal allowance for his wife. The day she left him the old minstrel was so ill that he had to send for a doctor and a nurse.

If the unstinted use of money, liberal advertising and untiring energy, supplemented by shrewd business tact, will make a big minstrel organization successful, then the George Wilson aggregation, who commence active rehearsals at Elmira, N. Y., this week, will be a success. Even now the management have a special force at work on the elaborate stage draperies and sittings for the introductory, appropriately named "Derby Day in England," and which Mr. Wilson has had copyrighted at Washington, D. C. Thousands of dollars have been expended for this feature, besides a vast outlay of money in the securing of foreign and domestic novelities. In fact, the enterprise this season is excelent in its scope its rare attractions, its preparatory labor and consequent cost. Not a day passes without addition being made.

Robert N. Lson, proprietor of Nelson's World Co., sailed for America, July 18, and is said to have some strong novelties with him. Manager Harrie R. Pierce is at Mt. Clemens, Mich. EMMA SCHIFF claims that Mrs. Langtry's play, "Esther Sandraz," is identical with a piece of hers in almost every scene and act, with just enough difference to change the acts and reverse the characters. The lady pointedly says: "As I have been informed that a gentleman gave the plot to Sydney Grundy, and derives the benefit in conjunction with the above author, I would feel greatly obliged if he will inform me from which of Adolphe Belot's novels he has selected the plot, situations, etc. I wrote my play when I was residing in New York, some years ago," After stating that she had submitted the play to Mrs. Langtry, Rose Coghlan, Maude Granger, Grace Hawthorne and others, Miss Schiff closes her letter thus: "I only know that my play is entered at Washington, and all rights are secured against colorable imitations."

Harry Braham writes from London, Eng., under the date of July 1, as follows: "London is the half way house for travellers en route to the Paris Exhibition. Things theatrical have not captured so far, on account of the intense heat. Augustus Harris stands at the top of the tree at Covent Garden Theatre. Italian Opera has, for the first time in many years, been a winner. The following great artists have contributed: Madames Melbs, Lablache, Albani, Scalchi, Marie Roze, Ella Russell and Jeanne, De Vigne, Mons, Jean De Reszke, Edward De Reszke, Lassalle and Sig. A. D'Andrade. The Crystal Palace, the Alexandra Palace and the Spanish Exhibition have been favored with big crowds day and night. England is copying America more every year in the way of enjoying outdoor amusements. Grand bands and cool drinks to people possessed with brains are far better than being cremated in a warm theatre. At many theatres new pieces have been produced, but, taken as a whole, only with moderate success. Henry Irving closed his season at the Lyceum on Saturday last. Richard Mansfield has had great compliments showered upon him by all sorts of people for his masterly rendering of "Richard III." Wilson Barrett has had crowded houses in the provinces, and he is now taking a well deserved rest prior to his starting for America. Charles Wyndham plays "David Garrick" (by request of his many admirers) before salling for his American tour. John L. Toole is playing a round of his favorite comedies before visiting Australia. That clever comedian Willie Edouin is again waiting his chance for a London theatre. Grace Hawthorne has scored in "True Heart" and "Camille." Mrs. Langtry has a good tour booked in the British provinces. There is talk here, from people who seem to know, that Mrs. L. will make her home permanently in England, the American climate not agreeing with her. "Esther Sandraz" will be her top card. Genevieve Ward plays "Forget Me Not" at the Grand Theatre Islington, I believe, for the last time. Edward Terry is still hovering around the merry roof bird, "Sweet Lavender." which is running merrily on. "The Balloon" had to be withdrawn to make way for "Æsop's Fables." The management have made a great mistake in doing so, "The Balloon," as all readers know, drew all London, and "Æsop's Fables." doesn't draw a corporal's guard. Kate Forsyth produced "The Tigress" at the Comedy Theatre Saurday night, to a crowded house. Louis Calvert appeared at the Genety Theatre for the benefit of Mr. Blackmore. "The Doll's House," built up by William Archer on the new "Ibsen" philosophy, will be shortly withdrawn. I hear that once more German opera will be produced in London next season. Wagner's "Nibelungen Ring" will be the opening opera. French plays at the Gaiety Theatre fluished its season on Saturday last. "Faust up to Date" begins tonight with the full Gaiety company. Sarah Bernhardt returns to the Gaiety Aug. 7, playing "La Tosca," "Camille," "Phedre," "Fron Fron," "Adrienne Lecouverur," "Fedora," "Theodora." Review of the Week .- We can hardly ex sect to see another week quite so dull theatrically is that which came to a close Saturday night July 10. STAR MUSEUM.—A Western drama, entitled "Kansas Kit." is being served up to those who can stand the sensational in any climate, and under all circircumstances, for the present week. The management state their intention to remain open all Summer, and have made arrangements accordive. Several additions have been made to the curio attractions, prominent in which are the Marimba Band of Guatemalian Indians, four in number. The marimba is an instrument of peculiar construction, producing a melody different from that of any other, and is indigenous to the country from whence these people come. Russell, the sword swalfower, and Cooke, the phenomenal penman, hold over for another week as do the den of hissing rattleshakes, Punch and Judy, and other features.

Doris' Museum.—Manager Doris is still catering to the wants of his Summer patrons, and claims that so far he has no cause to regret his determination to keep his well conducted amusement resort open through the year. The form of entertainment given seems exactly suited to the heated term. The music of the several operas and the rendering of the principal characters have been meritorious in every particular. The stage is necessarily a small one, of course but every attention is paid to scenic effect and detail, while the characters are well costumed and poorer voices have been histened to in more pretentious theatres. For this week an adaptation of 'Robert Macaire' 'Groin which source we are indebted for delightful 'Ermine' is being given by the people who have successfully produced the previous operas here. In the curto half the six hideous cannibals hold over changing their act to that of scenes from their home life, with feasist, fire dances, sacrifices, etc. Manager Doris has, at considerable expense, obtained a reproduction in wax of a one time well known character, the old 'Leatter Man." with the identical clothes worn by that singular perso age. The exhibit is genuine as the coroner's inquest on exhibition attests. A model of Prof. Campbell's air ship is also

The business there is to be continued at the discretion of his wife, and the net profits, above the amount required for the support of his wife and two sons, are to be applied on the mortgage. THE MOUNT MORRIS MUSEUM has at last given up, and closed its doors July 20 with salaries in arrears for from two to five weeks, besides a number of printing and advertising bills unpaid. The people the closing week were: Curio hall—Broncho Charley, Belle Moody fluman billiard bally, Mme. Downer, C. E. Chamberlain and Frof. J. Frank Stanley decturer. On the stage—Denning and Weish, Will J. Blossy, Miss Manning and Ben Callahan. Only two weeks ago Harry Deaves of Tom Gossman 4 Harry beaves the proprietors informed us that business was good and more than meeting the current expenses of the house. Bills contracted earlier in the season caused a drain on the box office, yet we understand from parties interested, that even these were not paid. On July 20, Mr. Gossman did not show up, and was represented by Mr. Deaves, who, we are informed, stood the people off in a very bold manner. There are ouslanding bills amounting to about $1,200. While the location is the best in Hariem, yet the building is not large enough to make much money, the ren' alone standing in $4,500 a year. We understand that the place has been run since last April (when it opened) without a regular license, although of this we cannot say positively. There have been but few weeks when salaries have been paid in full, and very often the people had to wait two weeks for their money. The main bills against the place are for advertising and a balance due for fitting the house up. One man, could he get a clear bill of the house and a few thousand dollars to boack him, could certainly make a little money during the Fall and Winter season, as the house has fully proven that fact, and, had the money been judiciously used, would be running now.

THE GAINTY MUSEE, 138 Bowery, is fast approaching completion, and will open with all foreign attractions. The principal curio will be the lady with four arms. The management have secured is dated Sept. 26, 1887.

The list of closed theatres this week is as follows: The Lyceum, Standard, Park, Daly's, Fifth Avenue, Fouricenth Street, Union Square, Academy, Tony Pastor's, Star, Nibo's, Thatia, People's, Poole's, Jacobs' Third Avenue, Harlem Comique, Grand Opera House, Proctor's Twenty-third Street, Metropolitan, Miner's Bowery and Eighth Avenue, and the National, besides all the museums save boris' and the Star. Poole's closed July 20, with the Week's stand of Harry Webber in "Aip and Tuck." The house had faited to draw much since its reopening, a month ago, and we fear it is doomed to go out of existence as a theatre.

Koster & Bial's.—The management here arrunning an excee ingly attractive bill in the barlesque of "Monte Cristo Jr.," "School Intermission" and the musical sketch of "The Chewing Gum Girls," The specialities are of a light order, and attract the most favorable attention. Additione Ancion made her reappearance July 22, her trapeze balancings being heartily endorsed. Laura Lee is in excellent voice, and her singing secures well deserved encores, On 22 Louise Searle was replaced as Monte Cristo by dashing and elever May Howard. John Marion, the Chester Sisters, Karl Michels and the Austin Sisters also appeared. On 29 Manager Bial will put on Frederic Solomon's burlesque, Plandittl, or Lamb'd in Corsica, "with May Howard, George Murphy, Conne Leslie, Jennie Joyce, Josie Gregory, Lillie Shandley, John Marion and others in the cast.

Philadelphia .- Business last week was very large, and, of course, the Grand Opera House caught it all. It seemed scarcely possible that the summer business of the Duff Opera Co. at this use could be improved upon, but the return of illinrichs American Opera Co. has brought about a marked increase in the size of the audiences. That this company, after an unprofitable four on the road, can come to this city direct from a ceilapse at Boston. Mass, and lax the scaling capacity of the largest of Philadelphia theatres, is a fact which is incidentally to the credit of the company, but which more particularly attests the populator, and hatre patronage of the Grand Opera House.....

Boston .- Pretty much the identical attractions which I reeled off in my last letter as furnishing the histrionic pleasures for that week are with us yet for the current six days. It's as dull and monotonous the current six days. It's as dull and monotonous here in and about the theatres as it is at night in a dead calm off "Mossbunker Point." And that is almost suicidally serene. "She," at Oakland Garden, by reason of its retention through the present week, leads me to believe that patronage has really reached the notch labeled "satisfactory," and, perhaps, after all, it will make a few samoleons for the management. I hear Grace Huntington's impersonation of Ayesha alluded to in praiseworthy terms. She should by long odds look the part quite "out of sight," if you will pardon the slang. It is somewhat significant and singular, perhaps, to read at the head of the Boston Museum "ads" that "Little Lord Fauntleroy" will be played "but three weeks more." And this, too, in the dead heat of midsummer, and after the piece has had a run of quite a little extent—163 performances. Viola Allen has given up the part of Mrs. Errol, and Evelyn Campbell is now doing the role. She is a new engagement for the stock here next season. Roland Reed will follow "Fauntleroy" Aug. 19, for a fortnight, and then "Hands Across the Sea" will be given its premier, and the regular season of the Museum will be inaugurated.

Worcester.—Bristol & Co.'s Circus, which started out from this city July 1, met with a misfortune at Milford, Mass. 16. A portion of the seats gave way, precipitating about six hundred people to the ground. A large number were slightly bruised or cut, but, fortunately, only six were seriously injured. The accident was in nowise due to negligence of the circus managers or attaches, but was caused by the sinking of the supports in the ground, made soft by recent heavy rains, and the overcrowding of the seats in opposition to the efforts of the ushers. The injured were cared for by the management, who assured them that they would meet all their bills pending their recovery, it is probable that no suits for damages will be brought. A section of the reserved seats afterwards gave way, owing to the crowd from the free seats taking possession of them, but this was attended with no all results. The show had been doing a good business, and this was their first piece of hard luck. The tour was resumed at Westboro 17. ... I ruwn Bros. Show closed a successful foundary engagement here 18. ... Kansas City.—The Shackford Opera Co., who have been playing at the Warder Grand Opera House this Summer, had to close July 1, on account of financial trouble. There is a bitter feeling among some of the members of the company against Manager Charles Shackford, as they claim that he deceived them as to the prospects ahead and financial backing. Instead of having money to back the company, he had to have Manager Crawford advance $1.800 to bring the troupe out from New York here, which was allowed to be taken out of the box receipts, so that when they closed July 1 most all of them had not received any salary for four weeks, and, furthermore that Manager Shackford had "stood off" board bills for several weeks, stating to the hotel proprietor that he was keeping the money out of their salaries to pay board and that he would stand good for it. Unger such financial difficulties Manager Shackford left the company July 1. At this state of affairs some Kansas City young gentlemen proposed to Treasurer Berrie Jarrett that they would furnish the money necessary to put the company on their feet and have it continue through the Summer. The company was then reorganized, with Mr. Jarrett as manager, and reopened July 5, but continued only a few days, as business was bad and the Kansas City backers weakened, leaving the company in a worse condition than before. Some of them had considerable trouble in getting enough money together to get home. Miss Haas remains aere, declaring her intention of never going on the stage again. She has left the boards tor good this dime.

THE CHAMPIONSH P FIGHT.

The Principals at Home-Participants

The Principals at Home—Participants Arraigned in Mississippi.

Although the new developments which some parties have professed to anticipate in connection with the recent battle for the puglistic championship of the world have not come to pass, and nothing of startling interest has occurred during the past week in relation thereto, the presence of the principals in this city, coupled with the not participally arrest efforts on the part of Governor Lowry of Mississippi to effect the capture of them and others who figured prominently on the field of Rich burg, have served to keep the attention of the public fixed upon the subject. Kirain arrived here on Tuesday, July 16, left for Baltimore the same day, returned next day, and upon learning that a detective from Ohio was on the lookout for him and Mitchell, after a brief stay again heel himself to the Monumental City. The detective alluded to was John T. Norris, of Spring field, O., who, armed with a requisition from Gov. Lowry on the governor of the Buckeye State, for Mitchell and Mike Donovan, applied for a warrant for the arrest of said parties on July 18, but was informed that a warrant was not necessary, but that a requisition from the fovernor of Mississippi on fove. Hill, which he did not have, be extracted. To the solitoning day, he received a discovernor of Mississippi on fove. Hill, which he did not have, be extracted.

public. We parted the best of friends, and we entertain today the warmest friendship for each other. I know that he entertains the deepest love for his parents, brother and sister. He is kind hearted and generous to a fault. I am positive that he fully appreciates what has been done for him by his backers and trainers. He has in Charley Johnston, of Brooklyn, whose name is used in my alleged interview, a true friend, and one whose friendship and generous a true friend, and one whose friendship and generous the control of the six what I have to say about Sullivan, Johnston and myself. Our treatment by the Southern people, especially in New Orleans, was very generous, courteous and kind, and I would like the frequois of Mr. Sullivan ale Young Men's Gymnastic Club and the representatives of the daily press of New Orleans; also to Pat Duffy, who was untiring in his efforts to see that we were properly cared for and made as comfortable as possible. Yours sincerely.

After the stake money has been paid over, and all other matters settled, it is probable that arrangements will be made for a tour of the principal cities of the country by the champion, probably under the management of Charley Johnston, his Brooklyn backer. Sullivan has been made a greater man than ever by the decisive result of the late encounter, and with proper management, and stiple adequate the country by the champion, probably under the management, and stiple adequate the allelo pile up quite a sung fortune during the ensuing year. It is not untilkely that the trip will be extended to the Antipedes, as the people of that diatul land are fairly aching for a sight of the boxing phenomenon of the age, and that they would pour their good coin into his coffers does not amint of doubt, for the liberality with which the sporting public of the land of the bush support anything meritorious is proverbial. The clampion will be foolish if he allows this opportunity to overflow his strong box to slip from any cause whatever.

A canagram date! July 10 says. "Int Smith, the champion of England, has posted £100 with The Sporting Life and issued a challenge to fight John L. Suilivan for The Police Gatette belt, £30) or £1,000 a side, and the championship of the world. The fight to be decided in four or six months from signing articles. Smith will allow Suilivan £30 separate of fight in the United States or Canada if same expenses are allowed. Smith is awaiting Suilivan's reply." After the fight with Kirain, Suilivan states that he would never again engage in a fight with bare another a succenter risked his liberty unnecessarily, and after his experience in this last affair (the end of which he, perhaps, has not yet seen), he cannot be blamed for not courting a recurrence of the troubles and annoyances to which he has been subjected. He has not returned any formal answer to the challenge from the British champion, but under the circumstances it is hardly probable that he will accept the terms, although we understand that he is willing to meet Smith in a contest with gloves to a finish, under the auspices of the California Athletic Club, and for a purse to be offered by that organization. Should the Englishman be willing to meet Suilivan on such thorus, we are saited his safety the most exacting, and it Smith is in earnest, after the consumnate victory achieved by "the big fellow" over the most exacting, and it Smith is in earnest, after the consumnate victory achieved by "the big fellow" over the man who certainly proved himself the master of Jim, even if they did fight a draw, he should not hesistate to signify his willingness to try conclusions with John L. in San Francisco, where he is sure to receive fair pay. Should he insist upon a fight under the old rules, with knuckles bare, it will be patent to all that, knowing Suilivan's announced determination not to enter a ring on those terms again, he is not look, information in fastic circles whose reputation and some of the making a gap at the championship, which, like Klirain before hi

BASEBALL:

STRAY SPARKS FROM THE DIAMOND.

Manager Harry Wright, of the Philadelphia Club, is very indignant over the way he and his team were treated by Umpire McQuaid, in stopping the game with the Chicago team July 13, in Philadelphia. He is quoted as saying: "At three o'clock there was quite a crowd outside the grounds walting for the gales to be opened, but we did not open them, as we feared we could not play on account of them, as we feared we could not play of account of the rain: When the Chicagos came along I asked Anson whether he winted to play. Certainly, he replied, this little spitickle of rain will litt hill all agreements of the same that he chicago team. Then we opened the gates and let the people in. It was raining slightly when the game was commenced, and kept gradually clearing away, but when Anson saw that we were likely to make several runs he suddenly realized that it was too wet to play, and asked McQuald to call the game. I protested, but McQuald compiled with Anson's request. After waiting twenty minutes, I saw the sun was conling out, and asked did decided in the club rooms that the grounds we're in no condition to play on. I finally got hint to go out when Anson said he would not play, McQuald called the game. Anson blurfed him into making this decision, and afterward laughed over it, saying to me: 'Oh, yes, you want to play, but I don'. If I had a run and afterward laughed over it, saying to me: 'Oh, yes, you want to play, but I don'. If I had a run and afterward laughed over it, saying to me: 'Oh, yes, you want to play, but I don'. If I had a run and afterward laughed over it, saying to me: 'Oh, yes, you want to play, the play is the play is the play of the production of the play is the play is the play of the production of the play is the play is the play is the play of the play of the play of the play is the play is the play is the play of the play of the play is the play i out nothing, then I would want to play. McQuaid lacked payshede, but he will hever be bulldozed again by Alson at my expense."

The Philadelphia Leager Saya: "If President Young enforces the ruiling he made the years ago, that when two games are played in one afternoon, the first one must consist of nine innings, that first games are played in one afternoon, the first one must consist of nine innings, that first games of any innings shat first games of any innings shat first game of six innings shat play three postponed games of any innings shat on one afternoon. We are of the biplinon, however, that Bancroft is missiaken in his view of the matter, basing our belief on Rule 22, Sec. 2, which says that a game shall consist of nine innings to each contesting nine," the only exceptions beling in the case of darkness or rain terminating a contest, and then at least five innings must be played. Then, again, Section 8d of the National League constitution says that a postponed game must be played off by the visiting club on the fifst succeeding day, "not counting days previously agreed upon for championship games between said clubs." This means, of course, that at least nide infinings of the postponed game must be played off by the visiting scheduled championship fame sould be commenced. It is questionable, therefore, whether the six inning game played July 17 in Boston can be counted as a legal victory by the Boston Club. If Manager Bahedroff's view of the matter is corfect, there is nothing then to prevent a strong club from playing on the same day several five inning postponed games with a poor team, and thereby gaining an unfair advantage were the other contestants.

The Sionx eligance of the latter, when the home team with the home team would held the visitors by 11 to 0. The chief feature was the pitching of knell for the home team, he accounted as a legal victory with the screen of the postponed and their second series on the grounds of the latter, July 14, and the efficiency of the Kansas City team, made his f

Joseph team again won, the score being 4 to 2. There were five twelve inning games played July 16 and 17. On 16, at Louisville and Dover the visiting clubs, Columbus and Camden, each won, the scores being 9 to 8 and 4 to 3: On July 17; at London and Milford the visiting teams. Hamiliton and Smyrna, were each beaten, sorfing respectively 3 and 3 to their opponents' 11 and 4. In the London-Hamilton game the home team scored no fewer than nine runs in the twelfth inning, while in the other eleven innings they obtained only two runs. Another twelve inning game was played July 18, at York, Pa., the home team defeating Norwalk by a score of 14 to 11.

score of 14 to 11.

Six of the Eastern teams of the National League and the American Association defeated six of the Western teams, July 15, only six games being played on that date, three in the East and three in the West. In three of the games the winners each scored seven runs, and in four of the games the losers each scored four runs, while in two games the losers each scored three runs.

losers each scored three runs.

Manager Frank C. Bancroft is very indignant over the report sent out from Boston that there is no money in the treasury of the Indianapolis Club to pay the players, and that they were not paid on July 15. He says it is not customary to pay the men while away from home, but that he did advance $325 to the men while in Boston, and they will be paid in full when they return home.

The Ball Players' Brotherhood held a secret session July 14, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, in this city. The meeting was called for the purpose of obtaining the ideas of the men about the future actions to be taken by the Brotherhood. All the delegates were not present, and it is hardly likely that another meeting will be called before next Fall.

A deal is going on between the St. Louis and Louisville Clubs, in which Pitcher Hudson, of the former, is to be exchanged for Pitcher Ramsey of the latter club. It is not altogether certain whether Hudson will consent to the transfer. He is now under suspension by the St. Louis Club.

Healy of the Chicago Club halls from Cairo, Ill., and it is, no doubt, owing to this fact that he was nicknamed the "Egyptian," and not because he took a trip around the world with the Chicago-All America combination. He was known by that sobriquet long before the trip was taken.

sobriquet long before the trip was taken.

President Stern of the Cincinnati Club is anxious to get another pitcher to help his team to win the American Association pennant, or, at least make a good showing in the race. He has, therefore, telegraphed to the Syracuse Club for the price of Murphy's release. The deal may yet be made.

The Pittsburg Club offered to sign ritcher Gilliland, of the McKeesport team, but he told the club's representative that he would expect the best inducements before he would sign, as he understood that young players were not ireated fairly in that team. Ed. Williamson, the genial short stop of the Chi-young players were not related fairly in that ream.

Ed. Williamson, the genial short stop of the Chicago Club, was tendered a benefit, July 13, in Chicago, by two amateur teams. Ed. umpired the game, and the amount taken in petted him nearly $1,000.

In the Harrisburg-Norwalk game of July 17, at Harrisburg the visitors made only one safe hit off Gamble. It may be mentioned, as a curious concidence, that Phann, of the Norwalks, retired the Harrisburgs for one hit July 10.

The directors of the Sloux City Club of the Western Association held a meeting July 16, in that city, and finally concluded that if the attendance was not better that fine club would either be disbanded of the trancing of the conditions of the city.

A game was recently played in Denver. Col., between nine members of Denver Lodge of Elks and a picked nine of Thatcher, Primrose & West's Minstrels. It looks very suspicious for them to insist on this substitute umpiring all the games when they have three on the list. Welch was in fine form and held the Chicagos down to eight hits, six of which were scattered through as many innings. Successive safe hits by Dwyer and Ityan in the ninth, earned one of the three runs credited to the visitors, the other two being the result of errors by Haffield and Tiernan, together with a base on balls. Dwyer was effective in the first five innings being batted safely only once, although his wild pitching had then helped the home team to two runs. Six safe hits, including one by Tiernan to right field for a home run were bunched by the New Yorks in the seventh and eighth innings, and yielded five runs and a winning lead. A Beamythable Contest

A Remarkable Contest

A Remarkable Contest took place July 20 at West New Brighton, Staten Island, no fewer than fifteen innings being then played by the representative teams of the Staten Island Athletic and Cricket Clubs without a run being scored. The umpire finally had to call the game on account of darkness. Tyng and Bates, both well known from their connection with Harvard College nines, pitched with telling effect, and were admirably supported. Tyng, who once piayed professionally with the Philadelphia Club, caught for the Harvard College team in their memorable twenty-four inning game, with the Manchester Club, May 11, 1877, and accepted thirty-eight chances. Another ex-professional Sweeney, took part in the present contest, and his catching was noteworthy, accepting, as he did, all of his twenty-four chances. The only long hit of the game was a double bagger by Van Rensselaer. As a matter of record we append the score of this remarkable contest between amateur teams.

RACING AT BRIGHTON.

Coney Island's Course Well Patronized

by Speculative Race Goers.

With the exception of the holiday crowds, the attendance at the course of the Brighton Beach Racing Association on Wednesday afternoon, July 17, was one of the largest of the season. An exceptionally good card was offered, and this together with the fine weather, an excellent track, and the assurance that the racing would be unusually good, sufficed to attract the racegoers in such large numbers. The speculators fared better than usual, too, the favorites and second horses carrying off most of the events, although the chief race of the day, the Fire Island Handicap, proved a stunning upset. It was won in handsome style by Bonnie S., who rated so low in the betting that the backers of the horse cach received $120.95 straight and $45.90 for a place. Clouds and sunshine alternating with pleasant breezes, rendered very comfortable the large crowd visiting the course on Friday afternoon, 19, and as excellent racing was witnessed on a track that was all that could be desired, with four favorites carrying off the honors, few left for home dissatisfied with the day's experience. A remarkable occurrence happened in the opening event, for which the fine filly Reclare was the favorite over the field. Nearing the stables, when she was well to the rearrshe was bitten by Prince Howard, and stumbled to her knees, but was immediately raised up by Jockey Taylor, and determinedly sent after the other horses, then about ten lengths in advance. Gaining constantly, she was third turning into the stretch for home, and, easily going to the front, she finally won a sensational race by two lengths, in 117, a performance that shows her to be almost, if not quite, the equal of any of the season's two year olds. The victory, under the circumstances, was also a great feather in the cap of Taylor. Result: Purse $600, the entrance money, $10 each, to go to the second horse, for two year olds, six furlongs—Warnke & Son's Reclare, by Reform, 110, Taylor, the favorite first, in 117, Prince Howard, 110, Bergan, third, a Trouble in the New Yorks.

The president of the New York Bicycle Club, Edward J. Shriver, has resigned, together with a recore or so of the oldest members of the organization. This was due to the fact that a few days ago the members, by a vote of 26 to 27, reinstated W. R.
Pitman, who, some weeks previously, was expelled by the trustees for conduct unbecoming a gentleman. Mr. Shriver has been president four years, and having had discretionary power to a certain degree in the expenditure of club money, he used some for printing to advocate the use of asphaltum on the boulevard which passess the cluthouse. To this objection was raised by Mr. Pitman, who, in conversation with a fellow member, charged that Mr. Shriver was making use of his office for the purpose of advancing his personal interests. It is expected that a number of others of the older members will resign also. core or so of the oldest members of the organiza-

THE CUP CHALLENGER'S BACKDOWN. The New York Club Will Not Offer a Spe cial Trophy For the Valkyrie.

An important meeting of the New York Yacht Club was held at Delmonico's on the afternoon of July 18, at which the America Cup challenge was finally disposed of the report of the committee being adverse to the granting of any concessions in the deed of gift. The report as submitted, and which was a lopted unanimously, reads as follows:

The America Cup Committee have the honor to report that the challenge made by the Royal Yacht Club on behalf of the Earl of Dunraven has been withdrawn. In their letters of July 10 to the Special Committee of the Royal Yacht Squadron, and also to Lord Dunraven, they felt it incumbent upon them to show that the last state which it challenged, is a clear contradiction of the terms of the deed of gft, because it gives to the club challengting and to the club holding the cup the right to make the match on any terms or conditions antisfactory to both parties thereby giving the holder the right to make any concessions, if willing so to do, and we tail to unferstand their misconception on this point. With this your Committee's functions end. We ask to have our report accepted and the Committee discharged.

Jas. D. SMITH, Chairman.

The correspondence referred to in the report included letters from and to Lord Dunrayen, and is much too voluminous for publication in our columns, especially as the challenge has resulted so unsatisfactorily. We however, make the following extract from the letter of July 10, which fully explains the position of the N. Y. Y. C. in the matter.

The meribers of the NewYork Yacht Club, and American yachtenen generally, were looking forward to the contest with much interest and pleasure, and will be disappointed at this result. To correct the misapprehensism which seems to exist in the minds of your committee, and to present if possible a recurrence of the same, the Committee of which I am Chairman, feel called upon to refer to the last paragraph of your communities, and to present point on the you that bleet, and the club holding the last paragraph of your communities of gift, to the terror of the you that bleet, and the club holding the last paragraph of your communities of gift in the last paragraph of your communities of gift in the last paragraph of your communities of gift in the last paragraph of your communities of gift in the last paragraph of your communities of gift in the club holding the last paragraph of your committee which had been also any and the club was turned to he request, or rather suggestion on the part of the Earl of Dunraven that a special prize be offered for the club to compete for na match with a representative American yacht, and the adverse report of the committee was unanimously adopted, as was also the following resolution:

Resolved, That the New York Yacht Club do not put up a special cup for competition in a match race with the Yakyrie, as suggested in the Earl of Dunraven kelter of June 24, 1889, to the chairman of the America Cup committee, but that all the club even its be opened to him.

The thanks of all self respecting Americans are due to the New York Yacht Club for not permitting the specious arguments of unsportsmanlike opponents to induce them to commit an action which no antagonist who was willing to meet them upon equal grounds could expect, and which they might live long to regret. The club events to be decided will include races for seventy and forty footers at Newport, for prizes valued at $650, which should meet the wishes of Lord Dunraven.

THE ANNUAL RACE for the half mile amateur swimming championship of England took place at the Welsh Harp Lake. Hendon, London, Eng., on July 6, and attracted a large crowd to this favorite sheet of water. The result of the contest was a victory for the mile champion, J. F. The postponed regatta between first and second class schooners, for a cup valued at $250, came off class schooners, for a cup valued at $250, came off over the thirty-six mile triangle course on Tuesday July 16, under very favorable weather conditions. The cup offered by Bayard, Roger, and valued at $190, was also started for by the Paposes and Verena, but the latter broke her centreboard before the first mark was reached, and both boats withdrew from the race. The race of the schooners was mainly between the Sea Fox and Merlin, the latter getting over the line first, but being quickly overtaken by the other craft, which held the leading position for several miles, when she was forced to relinquish it to Commodore Canfield's smart boat. The Mayflower did not sail as well as usual, her sails not drawing well, and she held third position throughout the contest, while her leaders did not afterwards change position, although the Merlin stuck closely to the leader all the way around. IN THEIR SPECTACULAR BICYCLE PRODUCTION Appearing as Bicyclists, Dancers, Comedians, Vocalists, Jugglers, Arobats and Club Swingers, introducing a Troupe of Trained Pigeons. 'The most sensationat wheel act in America. Appearing nightly as the MAY DAY REVELERS in PAINS' great "FIRE OF LONDON."

An Extract from THE BOSTON HERALD of July 7: After the performance begins it is impossible to look away from the air freeco stage. Buyeling had reach fection in 1666, it appears, that Mr. Pepys has tailed to mention, but the loos is his! Such graceful evolution never seen as the May Day Revelers made before that old Lord Mayor and the rest of the crowd.
